

Vivek Sharma

Vivek Sharma builds and grows businesses through digital technology.

He has led successful digital transformations at scale, with roles spanning CEO, board member, senior tech executive, strategy consultant, professor and author. Most recently, Vivek was the CEO of InStride, a Los Angeles based EdTech company he co-founded in 2019. Under his leadership for four years, InStride grew to a 180-person team helping learners in 41 large corporations avoid $630M of student debt, for which InStride has been named to Fortune's 'Global Impact 20' list of young companies. Prior to InStride, Vivek spent six years at The Walt Disney Company as Senior Vice President, Digital Guest Experience & eCommerce, leading a $10B eCommerce business and serving 150M guests annually across theme parks, resorts, cruises, guided travel adventures, restaurants and retail businesses globally. In earlier stints, Vivek served at Yahoo for four years as General Manager of Yahoo Mail & Messenger and Vice President of Yahoo Search, and at McKinsey & Company for eight years as Associate Partner of technology practice.

Vivek serves as board director for JetBlue Airways (NASDAQ: JBLU), where he is the chair of the Technology committee and a member of the Audit committee, and for Kaiser Permanente, where he is a member of the Audit & Compliance Committee and the Community Health Committee. He is also an adjunct professor of data science & operations at University of Southern California, where he teaches the graduate course 'Digital Foundations for Business Innovation'. Vivek is the author of two books, "C-SPARK: CEO-led Workforce Education for the AGE of AND" and "WIREFRAMED: Simplifying Digital Innovation for Business Leaders."

Vivek graduated from the Indian Institute of Technology, New Delhi and holds an MBA from INSEAD, France.